BELLPORT INN FEATURES BEAUTIFUL DETAILS OF
AN 1889 RENOVATED
HISTORIC PROPERTY

BY NICOLE FUENTES

The entire place is inspired by all things Bellport, especially with local artists featured throughout the inn. The Newmans, Ivana and John, closed on the property at the end of April. Since then, they lightly refreshed the building with white tones throughout, maintaining the integrity of the historic inn by also restoring as many of the antiques as possible. The idea, owner Ivana Newman explained, was to create a relaxed experience at the historic property that dates back to 1889, once known as the Great South Bay Inn. The location neighbors Main Street, with quick access to all the village amenities, including the marina, Ho-Hum Beach and the country club.

“Our intimate size makes it a practical and easy choice for booking the property in its entirety, and lends itself wonderfully to private gatherings of all sorts.”

THE LANDSCAPE

If guests wanted to stay put, there is plenty to gaze at within the property, including gardens curated by Oz Jardim, with a grapevine-draped gazebo and little pockets of beauty.

THE FURNITURE

Owner Ivana Newman also brings her Italian flare, including specially imported Rimini lounge chairs in the backyard. Also featured is local Michele Chiaramonte's custom furniture design.

THE ART

This Myron Greene piece is on full display as you enter the main house. Other artists featured include Patrice Casanova for his photography of Isabella Rossellini's heritage chickens and local photographer Jan Shannon, as well as other notable artists with work hung throughout.

THE COMMUNITY

Self-described as a quaint, bucolic village located on the South Shore of Long Island, Bellport Village has long been a destination for both daytrippers and summer residents.

ROOMS

The inn boasts four bedrooms in the main house, a garden suite with two bedrooms and a private one-bedroom cottage.

RATES

The entire property can sleep about 21; prices start at $550 per night. To book a reservation, visit www.bellportinn.com.

THE FINISHES

The cottage features a renovated kitchen with gold finishes and a hexagon gold marble backsplash.

All the linens, from the sheets to the slippers and robes, are either Frette or Matouk, two high-end imported Italian brands.

The Utopia soap and bath products are also all locally made by a woman named Babe from Brookhaven Hamlet.
